Sorority sponsors 14th annual Afro Arts Festival

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

The Zeta Phi Beta Sorority sponsored the 14th Festival of Afro Arts Saturday, March 19, at the Lake Shore Park. Though the heat of the sun beamed on spectators, exhibitors and guest speakers, the citizens of Belle Glade and surrounding communities gathered in support of achievements African-Americans have made. The events got under way with an Afro Arts Pageant that was held Wednesday, March 16, in the Lake Shore Middle School Gymnasium. The pageant consisted of girls ranging in ages from 5-14.

A parade was held Saturday morning. Participants walked down Main Street and Avenue E showing grace and spirit.

Following the parade, events began at Lake Shore Park. The guest speaker for the day was Richard Ramsey, principal at Lake Shore Middle School. Mr. Ramsey spoke on the needs of the children. He said parents need to be good role models. He said parents need to become involved in their children's lives. He told the crowd "if our kids lose, we lose."

Mr. Ramsey apologized to the youths for the condition the world is in today. He said "things are the way they are because adults let them be that way."

He also said people need to read and learn who they are and where they came from. "Till you can understand who you are, you will always be confused," he said.

Mr. Ramsey urged youths to set goals for themselves. He said if people do not have goals, they do not have desires. He said, "If you have no hope, there's no future." Speaking sternly to the youths, Mr. Ramsey said "people died and blood was shed so you can wear Starter jackets and Air

Albert Dowdell named lieutenant during roast in his honor

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Glades-area residents recently rallied together to show their appreciation and support for a lifetime Belle Glade resident. Albert Dowdell, 69, was honored with a roast that highlighted his accomplishments and services he has performed for the City of Belle Glade. The event was spearheaded by Mr. Dowdell's longtime friend Mattie Ray.

According to Mrs. Ray, "I think this type of recognition has been long overdue for Albert. He is someone so special in the community."

She said she thought of the idea a month ago but the actual planning and preparation for the event. She said she was assisted by several of Mr. Dowdell's co-workers and friends who wanted him to get the proper recognition he deserved.

Mrs. Ray said, "Belle Glade Police Chief Michael Miller and Lt. Danny Jones of the Pahokee Police Department were so helpful in organizing the event." The mistress of ceremonies for the evening was Susan Hammon.

"The event was sponsored by the community," said Mrs. Ray. Another highlight of the evening came when Chief Miller announced that Sgt. Dowdell has been named lieutenant of the Belle Glade Police Department. According to Mrs. Ray, "This came as a shock to everyone. No one knew that the chief was going to do that."

Lt. Dowdell said, "the event was very emotional." He said he is happy to know people put their faith and trust in him. Belle is my home, my life," he said. "All I am, I owe to this community." Mr. Dowdell said he has many hopes and plans for the police department. He said, "I'd like to do what I can to bring the police department and the community closer together."

Lt. Dowdell is a graduate of Glades Central High School. He is a United States Army veteran and has taken numerous college courses. He and his wife Marjorie have two children: Laurie, 13, and Albert III, 10.

Advanced recycling is coming to town

The Solid Waste Authority of Palm Beach (SWA) is bringing more recycling capabilities to the Glades.

SWA's been working for over a year to bring new blue recycling bins and educational materials explaining what new items can now be recycled.

This month, city residents in Belle Glade, Pahokee, South Bay and Canal Point will be receiving the blue bins. In the yellow bins, residents have been recycling newspapers and glass, plastics with a 1 or 2 and aluminum cans.

In the new blue bins, which should be out in the next week, residents can recycle magazines and catalogs, brown paper grocery bags, corrugated cardboard boxes, milk and juice cartons, drink boxes and aluminum foil and pie plates.

The program is also open in the unincorporated areas of the county and 37 cities, towns, and villages, affecting more than 400,000 households.

The program is offered as part of the SWA's recycling and waste reduction goals of 50 percent, as set by the SWA governing board at the encouragement of the county's 37 cities, villages and towns.

In 1988, the Florida legislature, through the Solid Waste Management Act, mandated that each of the state's 67 counties reduce the amount of waste going into the landfills by 40 percent by December 1994. Palm Beach County met that goal in 1992. The SWA governing board, wanting to provide the state with solid waste management leadership, set county-wide 50 percent recycling and waste reduction goals by 1998.

Seeing blue...Belle Glade residents should have received new blue recycling bins this week. The city is expanding its recycling effort to include magazines, catalogs, brown paper bags, corrugated cardboard boxes, milk and juice cartons, drink boxes and aluminum foil and pie plates. Shown, from left are Lori Hart, sanitation secretary, Jennie Morales, secretary, and Maritza Navarro, administrative secretary of public works.

News from the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center and Palm Beach Community College

Where there's a will there's a way. If you want to get on the way to higher education, one of the best places to start is Palm Beach Community College Glades Campus.

At PBCC - Glades Campus, you can earn your Associates Degree in a variety of subjects and prepare yourself for better paying jobs. In general, college graduates will earn significantly more money over their lives than non-college graduates.

In today's tough job competition, you need every advantage. From business to government, job openings are demanding workers with more educational training. For example, the Florida Highway Patrol recently announced that it would be seeking college graduates for entry-level officers. Reports from Washington D.C. show that the number of jobs for workers with only a high school diploma is rapidly shrinking. There are less and less jobs available if you stop your education at the high school level.

So what can you do? At Palm Beach Community College Glades Campus, we can help you continue your education. If you work during the day, PBCC offers classes at night. If you work at night, you can come during the day. Students can attend PBCC either full time or part time.

In addition to a flexible schedule for each individual, PBCC can also help you find out if you qualify for financial aid.

Each year, Palm Beach Community College's Financial Aid office provides scholarships, grants, loans and employment to assist deserving and qualified students. Awards for financial aid are based on financial need, scholastic merit or both.

For the 1992-93 academic year, 317 awards for financial aid were provided at the Glades Campus totaling $332,410 for Glades students.

Students who plan to attend school in the fall of 1994 and need financial assistance should begin the financial application process now. To find out more about financial aid you can call the financial aid office of PBCC at 992-6151.

For the love of reading...Children at the East Coast Migrant Head Start (Shannon Center) were treated to free books, thanks to the RIF (Reading is Fundamental) program. Shown are the 2 through 5-year-old children at A Duda and Sons camp with their teachers.

It was a "zoo" at Shannon's Head Start

Children in the East Coast Migrant Head Start program at Shannon Center (A Duda), had a field day last Tuesday. The theme was "a day at the zoo" and children, parents, and staff got to see different animals they might see at a zoo.

The ceramic, stuffed, or paper animals allowed the migrant children, many who have never been to the zoo, to see what various animals look like. They were given fake money to purchase their favorite animal and were also given books on animals.

The children participated in a picnic luncheon outside with their animal friends after several events. The books were distributed by Irene Figueroa, the director of the center. This activity was part of the RIF (Reading is Fundamental) program and was put together by the Education Coordinator Frances Ramirez, Health Coordinator Lois Monroe, Social Service M. Elena Sandoval, and the Assistant Director Florida Pacheco and staff.

Paving the way...Community Asphalt has finished repaving many streets in the Belle Glade area, but the City of Belle Glade street department is now going back and doing the touch-up work to the shoulders. Last year, the city spent $50,000 on street repairs; this year, the budget was increased to $250,000, allowing for more streets to be repaved. Community Asphalt workers are shown working recently at S.W. Avenue I.

Praise for GDS and teachers

I am writing this letter to try and show my appreciation for a local school and a very special teacher at this school.

This is my child's first year at Glades Day School and I am, so thankful that I decided to let him leave his other school. My child did not care much for school before he started going to Glades Day, and now, thanks to the school, both his teachers and friends, he likes school.

My son's grades have also improved. He has never liked to read and it was almost impossible to get him to. Well, that has even changed. Last week he told me about some books he wanted to buy. (I have bought him books he wanted many times and he would not read them.) I said we would buy them if he would read them. As usual he said he would, but I knew better. He never read the books I bought him.

Well, Saturday we went to the book store. I was looking for a book I wanted to purchase, when my son came over and said, "Let's hurry up and leave. I want to read my book." I was amazed.

He read in the food court while we were waiting for my mother. He read in the car when we left. He read to me for an hour and half at the bowling alley. When we left, he read in the car until we got home and later read his book to me at my parents house and to me at home.

What an amazing thing had come over my son all of a sudden!

Since school started he has talked about his teacher, things his teacher has taught them, things he has done, things he has said to them. It is obvious my son thinks the world of his teacher. The books he wanted were some the teacher had read to the class. My son said the teacher made them interesting.

I wrote this letter because I wanted to let that teacher know how grateful I am to him. On behalf of my parents, my son, and myself, I want to say thank you from the bottom of our hearts to Mr. Steve Hays, a wonderful teacher who has made a difference in more ways than one. Thank you."

Letter to the Editor on Charles Ruff was unwarranted

This Speak Out is addressed to Mr. Randy S. Martin, and anyone else who has knowledge or interest in The Sun's coverage of the death of Mr. Charles Ruff.

Mr. Martin's scathing attack on Brenda Bunting and The Sun's staff should have been tempered and was unwarranted.

Objective news reporting is never easy. While The Sun is not the New York Times, the article on Mr. Ruff's passing was fair and reasonable.

All need to be reminded - we are lucky to have The Fourth Estate in Belle Glade.

As far as journalistic integrity, Ms. Bunting's integrity seems better than most.

Instead of writing such a condemning letter, Mr. Martin perhaps should have written a loving tribute to Mr. Ruff, which I'm sure The Sun would have published."

Let's clean up our city

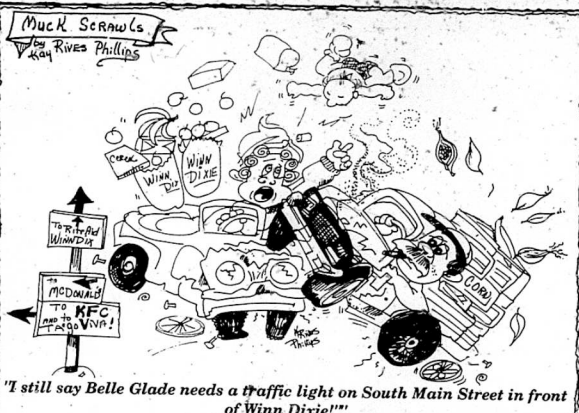

I was driving down Avenue E (Martin Luther King, Jr. Blvd) last week and noticed all the trash in a lot behind the Glades Plaza. It was more trash than I have ever seen in one place before!

It looked like someone had taken a paper shredder machine and blown a week's worth of newspapers all over the lot. Plus, there were cans, bottles, and other trash all over the place.

I then continued east on Avenue E and saw trash across from Lake Shore Middle School. Also, that lot needs to be mowed and maintained. I, for one, am tired of seeing that lot look so bad.

Please, people, let's clean up where we live and work. This sets a bad example for people coming to our town.

Editor's note: Local organizations are planning a city-wide clean up day for sometime early in summer. We understand this will be done in Belle Glade, Pahokee, and South Bay. We urge everyone to participate and help clean up our towns.

MUCH SCRAWLS
By RIVES PHILLIPS

"I still say Belle Glade needs a traffic light on South Main Street in front of Winn Dixie!"

Guest commentary

By Bolley "Bo" Johnson, Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives

Members of the House of Representatives continued their efforts to keep violent offenders off our streets for longer periods of time. During the sixth week of session, House members gave their initial approval to a plan that makes room in state prisons for up to another 1,200 criminals. This, along with the construction of 14,000 new prison beds planned for in next year's budget, will lengthen the time convicts remain behind bars.

This construction follows several steps lawmakers have taken over the last two years to restrict which inmates can earn gain time for good behavior and how much they can earn. Legislators learned last week that their work is proving successful. In June of 1992, Florida's prisoners served only 34 percent of their sentences. That increased to nearly 42 percent last month. And the numbers are even better for violent criminals. In June 1992, dangerous offenders served only 37 percent of their sentences; they now serve up to 53 percent.

Legislators are not content with those figures and are finding solutions to ensure that convicted criminals remain behind bars for the entire term of their sentences.

Nearly 200 Florida minority students would receive scholarships for law school under a bill approved by the full House during the sixth week of session. The House budget proposal for next year also includes $1.4 million to fund the enrollment of the students in independent or public law schools in the state. The legislation adds a legal education with the exception of math and science education. Each award provides an annual stipend of $11,000 and up to $5,000 per year in tuition and fees. This program has been successful in encouraging minority students to enter graduate programs in areas with which they have traditionally been under represented.

Voter registration becomes easier thanks to legislation passed by House members. House Bill 2325 brings Florida's voter registration into compliance with the National Voter Registration Act of 1993.

Under the provisions of this bill, registrations are allowed by mail and applications will be available at many locations throughout the state. Applicants may pick up a uniform statewide voter registration application, fill out the application and mail it to the supervisor of elections.

The application form will be prescribed by the Department of State and will include the oath required by the Constitution, will specify each eligibility requirement to register (age, citizenship and residency) and will indicate the penalty for false swearing on a voter registration application. No notarization or witnessing of the application is required.

In addition to registration by mail, an applicant applying for or renewing a driver's license or identification card will be asked if he would like to register to vote or to update an existing voter registration. A voter registration application will be mailed with driver's license renewal extension application notices.

Eligible citizens wishing to register to vote may also sign up at state agencies that provide public assistance (food stamps, Medicaid, WIC and AFDC programs), offices that serve persons with disabilities, centers for independent living, public libraries and marriage license offices.

In the aforementioned stock market example, people typically let fear or greed overtake (what should be their) skillful knowledge that the market continually cycles down and up. When it comes to relationships, skillful communications will help you better understand and learn to please your potential partner.

EFFORT - Skillful life techniques can not be purchased and are not inherited. Rather, it is through diligence, observation, and effort that people can develop the skills to succeed in arenas that are important to them. Colonel Sanders showed faith, skill and effort in starting his franchise, Kentucky Fried Chicken. He believed through skillful means, that he (in his 60s) had developed a good chicken recipe. He offered to sell it to numerous restaurants and was turned down by them all. Finally he convinced a bank to give him a small loan and the rest is chicken history. Of course, many would-be restaurateurs with equally (or more) tasty food, go bankrupt annually. The last necessary factor for success is luck.

teach it to you. It is important to recognize that factors outside of your control can affect your life success notwithstanding your faith, skill and effort. Why does one person succeed, while another fails? There is a lot to be said for being in the right place at the right time.

Many Belle Glade store owners were quite successful 10 years ago. Now with the exodus of the migrant workers, new skillful business strategies must be developed to survive.

Of all the aforementioned elements that are necessary for success, it is ironic that most folks sit on their duffs and wait for their luck to change. People buy lottery tickets much more often than they try to develop new vocational skills.

You can not directly change your luck; but you can daily improve your faith, skills, and efforts towards change.

Praise for GDS and teachers

"I am writing this letter to try and show my appreciation for a local school and a very special teacher at this school.

This is my child's first year at Glades Day School and I am so thankful that I decided to let him leave his other school. My child did not care much for school before he started going to Glades Day, and now, thanks to the school, both his teachers and friends, he likes school.

My son's grades have also improved. He has never liked to read and it was almost impossible to get him to. Well, that has even changed. Last week he told me about some books he wanted to buy. (I have bought him books he wanted many times and he would not read them). I said we would buy them if he would read them. As usual he said he would, but I knew better. He never read the books I bought him.

Well, Saturday we went to the book store. I was looking for a book I wanted to purchase, when my son came over and said, "Let's hurry up and leave. I want to read my book." I was amazed.

He read in the food court while we were waiting for my mother. He read in the car when we left. He read to me for an hour and half at the bowling alley. When we left, he read in the car until we got home and later read his book to me at my parents house and to me at home.

What an amazing thing had come over my son all of a sudden!

Since school started he has talked about his teacher, things his teacher has taught them, things he has done, things he has said to them. It is obvious my son thinks the world of his teacher. The books he wanted were some the teacher had read to the class. My son said the teacher made them interesting.

I wrote this letter because I wanted to let that teacher know how grateful I am to him. On behalf of my parents, my son, and myself, I want to say thank you from the bottom of our hearts to Mr. Steve Hays, a wonderful teacher who has made a difference in more ways than one. Thank you."

Letter to the Editor on Charles Ruff was unwarranted

"This Speak Out was addressed to Mr. Randy S. Martin, and anyone else who has knowledge or interest in The Sun's coverage of the death of Mr. Charles Ruff.

Mr. Martin's scathing attack on Brenda Bunting and The Sun's staff should have been tempered and was unwarranted.

Objective news reporting is never easy. While The Sun is not the New York Times, the article on Mr. Ruff's passing was fair and reasonable.

All need to be reminded - we are lucky to have 'The Fourth Estate' in Belle Glade. As far as journalistic integrity, Ms. Bunting's integrity seems better than most.

Instead of writing such a condemning letter, Mr. Martin perhaps should have written a loving tribute to Mr. Ruff, which I'm sure The Sun would have published."

Let's clean up our city

I was driving down Avenue E (Martin Luther King, Jr. Blvd) last week and noticed all the trash in a lot behind the Glades Plaza. It was more trash than I have ever seen in one place before!

It looked like someone had taken a paper shredder machine and blown a week's worth of newspapers all over the lot. Plus, there were cans, bottles, and other trash all over the place.

It then continued east on Avenue E and saw trash around from Lake Shore Middle School. Also, that lot needs to be mowed and maintained. I, for one, am tired of seeing that lot look so bad.

Please, people, let's clean up where we live and work. This sets a bad example for people coming to our town.

Editor's note: Local organizations are planning a city-wide clean up day for anytime early in summer. We understand this will be done in Belle Glade, Pahokee, and South Bay. We urge everyone to participate and help clean up our towns.

Guest commentary

By Bolley "Bo" Johnson, Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives

Members of the House of Representatives continued their efforts to keep violent offenders off our streets for longer periods of time. During the sixth week of session, House members gave their initial approval to a plan that makes room in state prisons for up to another 1,200 criminals. This, along with the construction of 14,000 new prison beds planned for in next year's budget, will lengthen the time convicts remain behind bars.

This construction follows several steps lawmakers have taken over the last two years to restrict which inmates can earn gain time for good behavior and how much they can earn. Legislators learned last week that their work is proving successful. In June of 1992, Florida's prisoners served only 34 percent of their sentences. That increased to nearly 42 percent last month. And the numbers are even better for violent criminals. In June 1992, dangerous offenders served only 37 percent of their sentences; they now serve up to 53 percent.

Legislators are not content with those figures and are finding solutions to ensure that convicted criminals remain behind bars for the entire term of their sentences.

Nearly 200 Florida minority students would receive scholarships for law school under a bill approved by the full House during the sixth week of session. The House budget proposal for next year also includes $1.4 million to fund the enrollment of the students in independent or public law schools in the state. The legislation adds a legal education with the exception of math and science education. Each award provides an annual stipend of $11,000 and up to $5,000 per year in tuition and fees. This program has been successful in encouraging minority students to enter graduate programs in areas with which they have traditionally been under represented.

Voter registration becomes easier thanks to legislation passed by House members. House Bill 2325 brings Florida's voter registration into compliance with the National Voter Registration Act of 1993.

Under the provisions of this bill, registrations are allowed by mail and applications will be available at many locations throughout the state. Applicants may pick up a uniform statewide voter registration application, fill out the application and mail it to the supervisor of elections.

The application form will be prescribed by the Department of State and will include the oath required by the Constitution, will specify each eligibility requirement to register (age, citizenship and residency) and will indicate the penalty for false swearing on a voter registration application. No notarization or witnessing of the application is required.

In addition to registration by mail, an applicant applying for or renewing a driver's license or identification card will be asked if he would like to register to vote or to update an existing voter registration. A voter registration application will be mailed with driver's license renewal extension application notices.

Eligible citizens wishing to register to vote may also sign up at state agencies that provide public assistance (food stamps, Medicaid, WIC and AFDC programs), offices that serve persons with disabilities, centers for independent living, public libraries and marriage license offices.

CORNER

Well, it's countdown for Spring Break! Seven days from today and we'll be sleeping and sunning! April 1-10 will be our Spring Break this year. After we return, it'll be countdown for the school year. The seniors will only have 25 days left for school. Where has the year gone?

The baseball and softball teams continue their season with exciting games. The girls lost two close ones last week. They just keep improving! They'll be playing three games this week, travelling to Clewiston Tuesday, Lake Worth Christian at home today at 4 p.m., and they'll travel to Immokalee tomorrow. Good luck ladies!

The baseball team played St. Edwards on Monday. Today they play the King's Academy at 4 p.m. and Moore Haven tomorrow at 4 p.m., all at Pioneer Park. Good luck Crusaders!

Yesterday was D-Day for some of our students. Report cards went home! There is some good news students: report cards will only come out one more time this year.

Be sure to mark on your calendars the Robin and Friends Concert at the First Baptist Church on Saturday night. Miss Wagoner always puts on a first-rate concert. So ya'll come!

Looking a little ahead, next week will be the Crusader Field Day. The class challenge is already heating up. Will it be the seniors or the juniors that will take the day? Will there be a teacher upset of the student champs? We'll find out next Thursday.

The junior class will provide lunch and goodies throughout the day. Until next week, "See Ya!"

(NAPS)—A sore throat and stuffy nose may warn that you're catching a cold. And, if you're running a temperature, you may be coming down with the flu. But, what you may not know are the warning signs of a disease that 75 percent of us are affected with: periodontitis or gum disease.

Gum disease is a disease of the bone and other structures that support your teeth. If left untreated, it can progress and cause loss of the bone supporting the teeth, and eventually the affected teeth may have to be removed.

DENTAL PROGRESS

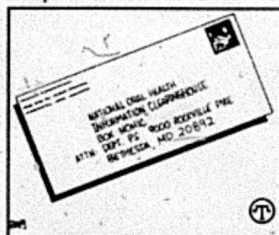

FACTS FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF DENTAL RESEARCH

Your Oral Health: Government Offers Help

(NAPS)—A dentist is asked to treat a child with a genetic disorder that affects tooth development, or an adult with diabetes complicated by severe gum disease. Where can the dentist find information on treatment? How can the patient or family obtain information about appropriate oral health care?

For the first time, there is a central resource for these "special care" patients and the practitioners who treat them: the National Oral Health Information Clearinghouse (NOHIC), a new service of the National Institute of Dental Research, one of the Federal National Institutes of Health.

Special care patients are those who have medical or disabling conditions that lead to oral health problems. Their treatment needs often lie outside of the realm of traditional dental care. Special care patients include people with genetic disorders or systemic diseases that affect oral health, such as cleft lip and/or palate and diabetes mellitus. Special care patients also include people whose medical treatments cause oral problems, such as mouth sores or dry mouth, that often result from chemotherapy or radiation therapy for head and neck cancers, or from a variety of medications. People with mental or physical disabilities, like severe arthritis, that make good oral hygiene or treatment difficult also need special care.

NOHIC offers a variety of services to help patients and professionals find and obtain information. It maintains a computerized catalog that provides descriptions and ordering information for a broad array of publications and other materials. In addition, the clearinghouse collects and maintains information on key organizations and programs involved in special care and the services available from these groups. NOHIC also produces and distributes patient education materials, including fact sheets, brochures and information packets.

March Is Skin Awareness Month

Get In Touch With Your Skin

(NAPS)—It's a good idea not to get out of touch with your skin. It's the part of your body that interacts with the world. It helps regulate your body temperature and protect you from the harmful effects of the environment such as invading bacteria and loss of moisture. It also mirrors the state of your emotional and physical health.

If you don't see a dermatologist on a regular basis, March is a good time to start. Recent studies show that sun damage begins to show much earlier than doctors have previously anticipated. The majority of those effects include wrinkling, liver spots and mottling—but doctors are also seeing skin cancers at increasingly earlier ages. For that reason, the experts at Vaseline Research recommend anyone who's been a sun worshiper, no matter what age, see a dermatologist for a thorough skin exam.

FACTS FROM EXPERTS AT THE AMERICAN PODIATRIC MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Get A Load Off Your Feet

(NAPS)—If you're like most Americans, you probably know being overweight is no good for your heart, but you've probably never thought about what all that weight could be doing to your feet.

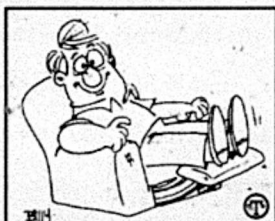

Fortunately, there are steps you can take to improve your weight and feet.

First of all, see your doctor. He or she can determine just how overweight you are—if you are—and what's the best way to go about improving things.

Next, see a podiatrist. This medical specialist can tell you what shape your feet are in and how to keep their health up while you're slimming down.

Many doctors recommend a diet that limits alcohol and foods such as fatty meat, thick sauces, sweets, butter and cream.

Your doctors may also suggest you exercise at least three times a week for 20 minutes or more at a time. Choose a level of activity high enough to make you breathless, but not so violent that you get dizzy. Walking is considered an excellent exercise for your feet as well as the rest of you. Your podiatrist can help you determine what shoes are best for your exercise regimen. Just bear in mind your feet have to bear the brunt of most exercises and treat them tenderly. Running puts a force of three to four times your body weight on each foot with every step.

Give your feet a helping hand: try not to put too much weight on them for too long.

You can obtain further information on foot problems by telephoning 1-800-FOOT-CARE (366-8227).

Alzheimer's Update

New Toll-Free Line To Help Caregivers

(NAPS)—Manor HealthCare Corp., the nation's largest provider of care for individuals with Alzheimer's Disease, has installed a new toll-free line for family members who are currently providing care at home for loved ones with Alzheimer's Disease and are looking for care alternatives.

By calling the special toll-free number, (800) 979-CARE, caregivers will receive a free brochure which describes how to evaluate and select a specialized Dementia/Alzheimer's Disease program in their area.

Approximately ten days later, caregivers will receive a phone call from a Manor HealthCare representative to discuss care options and how to best use the brochure.

"Most family members who are struggling to cope with Alzheimer's Disease want to care for their loved ones at home, but we know it isn't always possible," explains Joyce Simard-Taggart, M.S.W., National Director of Alzheimer's Services for Manor HealthCare. "When caregivers can no longer provide care at home or cope on their own," she added, "we want them to know there is hope and that care alternatives are available."

Manor HealthCare operates over 80 Alzheimer's special care units nationwide under the names Arcadia, Thalia and Laurel Day, which provide services and care to individuals with Alzheimer's Disease and their families.

ASTHMA ANSWERS

Today, there are an estimated ten to 15 million American adults and children suffering from asthma, a respiratory disease which blocks the airways and makes the ability to breathe more difficult.

Many physicians now believe that to halt the disturbing rise in emergency room visits and ease the many emotional and practical challenges faced by asthma patients and their families, there's a continuing need for up-to-date information on this chronic illness.

That's the reason for the creation of a new newsletter called Air Currents, offered free as a public service by All & Hanburys Respiratory Institute. It is an educational resource program supported by an educational grant from Allen & Hanburys, a division of Glaxo, Inc.

In addition to information the newsletter offers practical advice on how to deal with asthma and lead a healthy life.

Here from Air Currents are some tips on how to avoid situations which trigger an asthma attack and how to treat it once it occurs:

*Talk to your doctor about medications you can use before exposure to known but unavoidable asthma triggers such as cold, dry air, animal hairs, and shifts in the pollen season.

*Exercise is a trigger of an asthma attack in some people. Many individuals who do not normally suffer from asthma can suffer from exercise-induced asthma (EIA), as can those who have well-established asthma.

*EIA can be prevented by medication prior to exercise and most physicians now recommend exercise for their asthmatic patients for cardiovascular and overall conditioning benefits it offers.

*Remember to review and update medicine routines regularly to accommodate seasonal changes in activities and schedules. Also, as children grow, medication needs change too.

*There are three million children with asthma. They should be encouraged, under medical supervision, to participate in all activities including exercise and sports.

HEAT ILLNESS

Heat illnesses occur most commonly in early summer when the victims may have been exercising excessively without acclimatizing themselves to hot weather or during "heat waves" in which high temperature-high humidity and lack of wind combine to expose everyone to the risk of heat illness.

Heat illness can be divided into three basic categories: heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke. Heat cramps are characterized by muscle cramps. Often these cramps occur in the abdominal or chest muscles.

Heat exhaustion is characterized by weakness, nausea, dizziness, headache and sometimes muscle cramps. Sweating is present. There is usually no disorientation. Body temperature may be elevated but less than 104°F.

Heat stroke is characterized by loss of the ability to sweat. The skin is hot and dry. The victim is confused and may even have seizures. Body temperature is elevated to greater than 104°F.

The treatment for heat illness consists of removing the victim from the hot environment and replacing the fluid and salt in the body. In addition, rapid cooling is needed for patients with heat stroke. A physician should be consulted if any form of heat illness is suspected.

Birth Control Pills Most Popular Contraceptive

Since their introduction 30 years ago, oral contraceptives, or birth control pills, have become the most popular method of preventing pregnancy.

Aside from sterilization and the new contraceptive implants, oral contraceptives are the most effective means of birth control. The pills can work several different ways, either by inhibiting ovulation, inhibiting egg implantation or preventing sperm penetration.

Before prescribing oral contraceptives, the doctor needs to get certain vital information from the woman, including her menstrual history, previous medical problems and family medical history. Particular attention is paid to any incidence of diabetes, cardiovascular disease or cancer of the reproductive system.

This information helps the doctor determine if the patient is at risk by using oral contraceptives. Once any risks have been ruled out, the doctor will choose the pill formulation that is right for the patient.

As with any medication, the patient's pharmacist can provide additional advice and information to supplement the doctor's instructions. The neighborhood pharmacist is always accessible should the patient have questions after starting the prescription, according to NARD, the national association representing independent retail pharmacy.

When You Miss A Pill

All oral contraceptives should be taken daily. Missing one pill is not a major cause for concern.

The patient should just take it as soon as she remembers. It is best to take two pills at least six hours apart to minimize nausea which is common when two pills are taken simultaneously.

If two pills are missed, the patient should take two pills twice a day for two days and use a backup method of contraception for the rest of her menstrual cycle. If three or more pills are missed, the patient should call her doctor or pharmacist because the possibility of ovulation and bleeding increases with each pill missed.

Although oral contraceptives are safe when used as prescribed, side effects are common. Most are minor and short-lived. They may include nausea, vomiting, breast tenderness, and vaginal bleeding or spotting. These side effects usually occur during the first 28-day cycle of use and disappear by the third or fourth cycle. Fluid retention and weight gain may also occur.

It is important for patients to understand that many different oral contraceptive formulations are available, and an estimated 80 percent of all women should be able to take birth control pills without noticeable side effects after the third cycle of use.

Benefits of quitting smoking

If you or a friend have thought about quitting smoking, here's some good news: It's never too late to quit. Consider these facts:

Smoking is the major cause of cancer deaths in the United States. It leads to nearly all cases of lung cancer and is a major cause of cancers of the mouth, larynx (voice box), esophagus (food tube), bladder, kidney, and pancreas.

Smoking can be particularly risky for older Americans. Many have smoked for a long time—an average of 45 years. Fortunately, older is often wiser when it comes to quitting. Older smokers are more likely to succeed. Of those older smokers who quit, nine out of ten do so on their own or with the help of booklets and programs they use on their own.

Nobody ever said quitting was easy, but it can be done. Here are some of the reasons to do it:

Your health: Twelve hours after you cut out that last cigarette, your body begins to heal itself. You will begin to breathe easier and your sense of smell and taste will improve. In ten years, your risk of death from smoking is nearly the same as that for a person who has never smoked.

Your family's health: The smoke from your cigarettes puts your children and grandchildren at risk of developing pneumonia and bronchitis. It also aggravates asthma. If your spouse is a non-smoker, his or her risk of getting lung cancer doubles if you smoke heavily.

Your pocketbook: Cigarettes are expensive, and so is health care. You can save on both if you quit.

All in all, if you're a smoker, quitting is the single best thing you can do to protect yourself against cancer. Over 40 million Americans have done it. You can too!

How Do I Quit?

Remember, most people do quit smoking on their own. Your doctor or pharmacist can help you get started. Or, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER for advice and a free booklet of tips to quit. It's a free call.

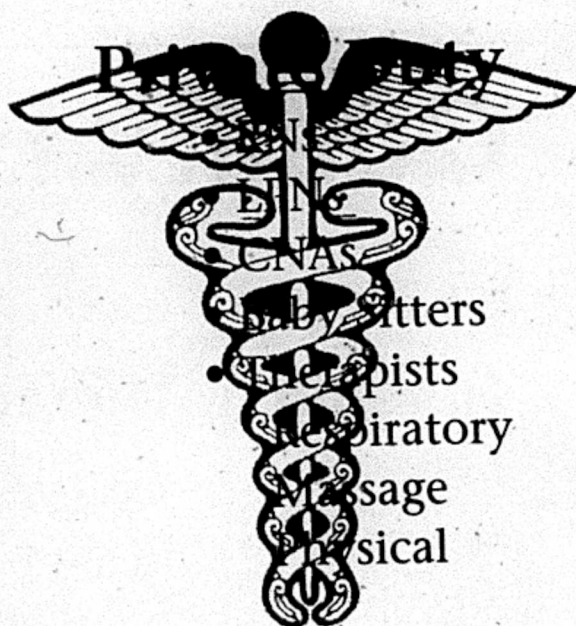

Smoking: It's Never Too Late To Quit

Cigarette smoking is responsible for 85 percent of lung cancer among men, reports the American Cancer Society.

The psychological impact of wearing reading glasses can be reduced if several pairs are kept in different colors and styles to match a wardrobe or activity. The experts at Marchon & Marcolin suggest that fashionable designs and colors can turn a tired "Ben Franklin" image into a look that is contemporary and fun.

Presbyopia occurs as we age when the lens of the eye becomes less flexible and less able to accommodate a clear focus in mid-to-close distances. According to Dr. Jack Weber, Marchon & Marcolin's Director of Education and Research, the solution is to wear reading glasses or bi-focals.

Until recently reading glasses implied a stigma of old-age. They were never youthful or stylish.

All that has changed say the experts at Marchon & Marcolin. Reading glasses, or half-eyes as they are called in the eyewear industry, tend to be bolder, more colorful and much more fun to wear. Today, reading glasses are available in cherry-red, emerald green, grape, turquoise and metallic blue, besides the usual tortoise and grays.

"The psychological impact of wearing reading glasses can be diminished," says Dr. Weber, "if you keep several pair that are color and style appropriate for the many facets of your life." He suggests investigating new eyewear materials and combinations of metal and plastic that can lend an air of authority, an image of elegance or a look that is just plain fun.

CFG halfeyes are available in fourteen unusual colors. CFGs are made from carbon fiber graphite, the lightweight and sturdy material in golf clubs and tennis rackets. A new material called Flexon makes bendable, twistable, tamper-proof eyeglass frames. For elegant dinner engagements, Marcolin eyewear has created reading glasses styled with glitter and gold.

Dr. Weber adds, "Why think of presbyopia as a traumatic experience, when eyewear has become an important fashion accessory. Take advantage of chic fashion choices and make reading glasses fun to wear."

YOU AND YOUR EYES

Our eyes are the most important sense organs. Half of all cases of blindness can be prevented with current medical knowledge and techniques.

The best defense against eye problems is to have a professional eye examination every two years after age 35.

LATEST TECHNOLOGY

Disposable Contact Lenses: One of the most significant advancements in the eye care profession has been the introduction of the Disposable Contact Lens. These lenses promise superior comfort and patient satisfaction. Simply wear them for one week and throw them away. Replacing the lens weekly helps promote better eye health, because lens deposits are less likely to build up over time as they do with extended wear or daily wear soft contact lenses.
